Members of the ASBYU Executive Council mull proposals in their regular Thursday meeting.

Student execs discuss referendum publicity

The council then decided all funds used in campaigning would be used for the sole purpose of encouraging the students to examine the proposal and get out and vote.

On the class gift proposal, the Executive Council approved the recommendation of the Class Gift Committee and appropriated $10,000 to finance the furnishing of an area in the new library addition.

It was also announced that because of the upcoming centennial year, funds of $20,000 from the reserve of accumulated monies of previous Executive Councils would be added to this year's class gift, bringing the total to $30,000.

Besides the $10,000 appropriated for the library, the committee recommended and the council approved that $20,000 be appropriated for two pieces of sculpture that will be placed on the campus.

Hall, vice president of Student Community Services, termed the action "an extravagant waste," and Dave Wade of the Freshmen Office voted against the proposal, claiming the idea was "impractical."

Frank Wing, chairman of the Class Gift Committee, pointed out that those who voted against the proposal did not understand the issue completely.

"This isn't money that we can use for just anything. The administration has earmarked

House reviews Rocky

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller told the House Judiciary Committee Thursday there would be no conflict of interest if he became vice president, but the committee indicated it intends to dig deeply into his family's financial affairs.

"You don't have to worry about a conflict of interest with this citizen," said Rockefeller. "I've got one interest—the American people, the United States and our role in the world."

Rockefeller was responding to questions by Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., who set the tone for the Judiciary Committee hearings by calling the Rockefeller money a highly relevant subject for the inquiry.

"We must attempt to measure the network of Rockefeller family wealth and place it into the perspective of both the American economy and the American political system," Rodino said.

At the opening of what could be extensive hearings by the Judiciary Committee, Rockefeller's nomination by the Senate appeared assured on the basis of an Associated Press poll.

Only 5 senators said they were inclined to vote against the nomination at this time. Seventy-nine said they favored it, and 16 remained undecided. The Senate is scheduled to vote on the nomination during the first week of December.

BYU could be affected by federal regulation

BY MARCH HADDOCK
Universe Staff Writer

Athletics, the dress code and housing are only some of the areas in which BYU would be affected by the federal government's proposed regulations for eliminating discrimination on the basis of sex.

The regulations, under consideration by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), revisions and amendments, if implemented, would have a profound effect upon all universities and colleges which receive federal financial assistance.

The HEW has received 9,000 pieces of literature about the proposed regulations, according to Jim McConkie, administrative assistant to Rep. Gunn McKay (D-Utah).

Stan Watts, BYU athletics director, said the law would affect the athletic program of all the schools that receive federal funds.

BYU would probably be less affected than public institutions because of its lack of independence on federal funds, Watts said.

However, BYU does receive research funds from the federal government, according to Pres. Dallin H. Oaks. Therefore, the university would be affected to a degree by the proposed policy.

The proposed regulations would require that equal opportunities be provided members of both sexes in athletics, with equal equipment and training.

According to Watts, this would mean although women would probably not want to participate on a football team, another sport such as field hockey would be selected and equal opportunity for women to participate in that sport would be provided.

If implemented as now written, Watts said the regulations would mean

Ford pays tribute to South Koreans

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — With a warm tribute to "our faithful ally," President Ford flew into South Korea today to reaffirm U.S. military ties with the country it helped nearly a quarter-century ago in fighting Communist invasion.

"I want to see for myself what you have built upon the ashes of war," Ford said as he began his visit to South Korea after a five-day trip to Japan.

Ron Nessen, the White House press secretary, said the President had no intention of meeting with Korean opposition leaders.

The government of President Chung Hee Park has jailed scores of dissident clergymen and writers, and on Thursday riot police entered the U.S. Embassy compound and dragged off some 20 women who were demanding that their sons and husbands be released from jail on antigovernment charges.

The State Department in Washington said they also arrested the Rev. James S. Sinnot, an American Presbyterian minister, and that the police action violated the diplomatic immunity of the embassy compound.

The embassy said Korean authorities later expressed regret over the incident and told the embassy that all the women had been released.

It was not immediately known whether Father Sinnot was freed.

"I am here to reaffirm our friendship and to give it new life and meaning," said Ford, the third president to visit South Korea.

"Nothing binds nations closer than to have fought side by side for the same cause," Ford said. "Two times we have stood together, here and in Vietnam, to preserve the peace and stability of Asia and the world. We can never forget this."

Some 35,000 Americans died in the Korean War.

Officials say the purpose of Ford's stopover here is to demonstrate the importance the United States puts on Korean stability, but critics say it will only buttress President Chung Hee Park's suppression of civil rights.

Park has been tolerating some opposition to his one-man rule, and many fear he will begin silencing critics once Ford ends his Far Eastern trip and upcoming U.N. debate on Korea is over.

Many of Park's critics think his fear of alienating the United States, or world opinion in general is why Park has not gone further and jailed hundreds of dissidents in growing antigovernment protests.

Seoul desperately is trying to line up world support against a proposal to be debated at the United Nations next week to do away with the U.N. military command structure in Korea.

Once these issues are out of the way, many think the government will feel its survival is at stake unless the dissidents are suppressed.

Food stamp shoppers' habits told by grocers

By TOM O'DELL
Universe Staff Writer

Some people using food stamps buy more expensive foods than the average shopper, according to a recent survey of local store managers.

The survey, taken in the Provo-Orem-Springville area Nov. 19, was directed toward chain stores and private grocers.

Six managers said food stamp users bought products which cost more than those of the average shopper. Seven managers indicated there was little or no difference.

One manager indicated he thought food stamp users bought more expensive meats, but about the same price merchandise otherwise. Another store owner was uncertain.

Some of these people surveyed expressed opinions that those who abused food stamps were mainly younger people, many of them students. Others noticed no such trend.

One manager who felt more expensive foods were being purchased, said, "I can look at a cart and tell if the people are buying with food stamps or not."

Another manager said, "I heard a lady say that it would be hard when she had to go back on a budget and didn't have the stamps."

One Springville manager told what he felt to be some of the values of food stamps. He said, "Because the stamps can't be used to buy any non-food products, such as, toilet paper, cigarettes, soap, etc., it helps people establish better diets. This is especially good for students."

The food stamp program is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). According to the department, food stamps are essentially "discount coupons which can be bought by qualified persons at a lower price than the stamps purchasing power."

The number of students in the area using food stamps is very small. According to Donald Richens, district director of assistance payments of the Utah Department of Social Services, there are between 150-200 students in the food stamp program.

Hugh Williams, an eligibility worker, further explained that most of the students using food stamps are married and have children to support.

Eligibility for food stamps is "determined by several things. Initially, a person applying for food stamps must have proof of residence, such as a driver's license, activity card or rent receipt."

Also necessary is a statement of the number of persons in the household. The amount of income is the next thing to be reported. This is the income received from all sources, wages, social security, veterans benefits or contributions from relatives.

The first criteria is the amount of "hardship" payments. Such things as above average rent due to a housing shortage, medical expenses not covered by insurance and the like.

For students, educational costs are also taken into account, and could be very important in helping the students get through school, according to Williams.

The USDA explains there are several reasons for the food stamp program. "As costs for vital goods continue to increase, many families and persons are experiencing difficulties in making ends meet," they explained.

"The food stamp program is specifically designed to insure that hard times do not prevent proper nutrition and good health. Utilizing food stamps is not collecting charity... rather, taking advantage of this program is much like collecting unemployment, social security or union benefits," according to the USDA.

Music thanks planned

The BYU's A Cappella Choir and Philharmonic Orchestra will combine their talents Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the Marriott Center.

This special Thanksgiving program will take the place of the usual devotional assembly.

The Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Ralph Laycock, will perform two numbers: "Allegretto," from Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 and "Polovtzean, Dances from Egmont" by Borodin.

The titles may sound strange, Dr. Laycock said, "But really the tunes are not. Many of the movements have been used in such Broadway plays as Kismet."

The A Cappella Choir, which traveled to Scandinavia this spring to perform in Finland, Denmark, Sweden and Norway, has been acclaimed one of the greatest college choirs in the nation.

Under the direction of Dr. Ralph Woodward, the 64-voice choir "will sing several sacred selections appropriate to the season," Dr. Woodward said.

"The choir and orchestra will also combine in performing 'Polovtzean Dances from Prince Egmont,' Dr. Woodward added.

Dr. Ralph Laycock leads the A Cappella choir in an earlier performance in Europe. The choir will perform with the Philharmonic Orchestra in Tuesday's devotional assembly.

Death sentences given for killings

By DAVE CLEMENS
Associated Press Writer

FARMINGTON, Utah (AP) — Their death sentences pronounced by a jury late Wednesday, Dale S. Pierre and William A. Andrews await formal sentencing next week by a trial judge for the execution-style killing of three Ogden, Utah residents. Attorneys for both men say they will appeal the death sentences.

The 11-man, one-woman jury hurried from the courtroom Wednesday night after handing down the death judgment for the two airmen from Hill Air Force Base near Ogden.

The jury was unanimous in its decision, sentencing each man to death on each of the three murder counts after four hours of deliberation.

As the sentence was read for the slaying of one victim, an 18-year-old girl, the girl's mother, turned white, then cried "Oh, my God," and burst into tears.

No other relatives of the convicted or the victims were in the courtroom awaiting the sentence, although others had been present during the five-week trial.

The defendants were impassive. Pierre slumped in his chair through the sentencing, and Andrews sat straight, staring at the floor, not looking up.

After the sentencing, one defense attorney said Pierre had "shown no strain all day" the day of the judgment.

The airmen were convicted of the deaths of Sherry Michelle Ansley, 18, Mrs. Byron Naisbitt, 52, and Stanley Walker, 20, in the April 22 robbery of the Hi Fi Shop in downtown Ogden.

The jury had the option of the death sentence or life imprisonment for the defendants. Utah law, which calls for a penalty hearing by judge or jury after the verdict in capital cases, requires the death decision be unanimous if rendered by the jury.

If appeals fail, Pierre, 21, Brooklyn, N.Y., and Andrews, 19, Dallas, Tex., face hanging or firing squad. Utah law allows those convicted to die their choice of the two.

Prosecuting attorney Robert Newey said he did not know how the execution date will be chosen or whether Utah District Judge John Wahlquist will announce the date when he formalizes sentence Nov. 27.

The defendants were found guilty Saturday of the murders and robbery of the stereo store in which the killings took place.

Dedication services end today

The final sessions of dedication services for the new Washington, D.C. Temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will be held today at 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m.

President Spencer W. Kimball will preside over the sessions and pronounce the dedicatory prayer.

Today's sessions are the last of 10 services, each attended by about 4,300 members of the church beginning Tuesday.

Members of the general authorities of the church have delivered addresses to the thousands of Latter-day Saints that have come to see the first temple on the east coast dedicated after nearly six years of construction.

Speakers at the sessions have included Elders Ezra Taft Benson and Mark E. Petersen, of the Council of the Twelve Apostles; Elray L. Christiansen, Sterling W. Sill, O. Leslie Stone, and Neal A. Maxwell, Assistants to the Council of the Twelve.

Elder Benson, now President of the Council of the Twelve, was the first president of the Washington

Possible oil import limits seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton said today if mandatory fuel conservation measures are needed, he would support a U.S.-imposed limit on oil imports.

Testifying before the House environment subcommittee, Morton said proposals to tax excessive automobile horsepower or order Detroit auto manufacturers to produce cars with minimum gas mileage rates are "too little and too late."

Morton did not comment on an increased federal gasoline tax, a proposal he said advanced until President Ford insisted it is not a possibility and chided Morton for continuing to discuss it.

Prices rise, net wage falls in October double-squeeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government had a double dose of bad economic news for Americans Thursday. It said consumer prices rose nine-tenths of one percent in October, while workers' spendable earnings fell three-tenths of one percent.

Higher prices for food, automobiles, clothing and housing were behind the increase in consumer prices, the Labor Department said.

The October rise meant that prices of things most Americans buy were 10.6 percent higher than in January and 12.2 percent above the previous year.

The increase for all last year was 8.8 percent.

Although the October increase in consumer prices was smaller than in September and August, it was higher than normal and showed that inflation, especially in food prices, still reins unchecked in the economy.

With the three-tenths of one percent decline in October, real spendable earnings were 4.9 percent below a year earlier.

Some prices did decline in October, notably for meat, which was down 1 percent, and gasoline down 2.7 percent to an average of 53 cents a gallon for regular and 57 cents for premium. Fresh fruit prices also fell.

But overall food prices increased 1.3 percent in October, with prices of cereals, bakery products, eggs, prepared foods, sweets and non-alcoholic beverages leading the way.

The consumer price index in October stood at 153.2 of the 1967 average of 100, meaning that goods which cost $100 in 1967 now cost on the average $153.20.

Unadjusted net auto prices were up 4.5 percent in October, and 1.1 percent, adjusted. Clothing prices were up nine-tenths of one percent unadjusted and one-tenth of one percent adjusted.

Mortgage interest costs also were said to be higher.

U.S. supports Israel in U.N. debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The United States on Thursday declared its support of Israel's right to exist and lashed out at the Arab guerrillas' "deliberate, brutal policy of terror" and their attempt to compare it with the American Revolution.

The stance was at odds with the approach to the Palestine question taken by a majority of speakers in the General Assembly debate on Palestine and with a resolution prepared by Third World countries which says nothing about the continued existence of Israel.

"Certainly it must be understood by all that Israel has the right to exist as a sovereign, independent state within secure and recognized boundaries," U.S. Ambassador John A. Scali said.

General Motors announces layoffs

DETROIT — General Motors said Thursday it will suspend production at 9 of its 22 U.S. auto assembly plants for from one to two weeks in December, laying off some 30,000 workers.

Ford said Thursday that about 3,000 of its white-collar workers in the United States will be laid off indefinitely, beginning Dec. 1.

Meanwhile, Detroit radio station WJR, quoting an unidentified spokesman for Chrysler, said that 15,000 white-collar workers at Chrysler will be laid off for six weeks beginning next Wednesday, when five of the company's six car assembly plants shut down.

Reductions in white collar workforces at the Big Three come on the heels of massive hourly worker layoffs brought on by the industry's worst sales slump since the 1958 recession.

Multibillion-dollar tax bill approved

WASHINGTON — The House Ways and Means Committee approved a multibillion-tax bill Thursday which would end the controversial oil depletion allowance.

Along with hiking petroleum industry taxes, the legislation would cut taxes for millions of average Americans; boost the investment tax credit for utilities, and increase taxes on foreign-source income of multinational firms.

The vote on the final package in the committee was 16-6, with oil-state representatives on the committee leading the dissent.

Coal mine negotiators renew talks

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller said Thursday he would return to negotiations to try to reach a coal industry contract settlement, but he indicated he did not expect any major new concessions from the mine operators.

Miller said he would be concentrating on "about 10 areas in which we hope to make some improvements." But he indicated the renewed talks—which come in the face of reported miner opposition to the pact originally negotiated—would be aimed at revising language rather than seeking concessions.

"I'm not going back for another bite of the apple. There ain't nothing left but the core. I took all the bites I could," he said.

Collegiates run legislature

seventeen BYU students are participating in the student legislature at the State Capitol Building Wednesday through Saturday this week. Seventy delegates from 10 Utah's eleven universities are creating legislation which they will ask Utah Legislature to consider at its next session. The assembly is sponsored by the Utah Intercollegiate Assembly (UIA), an organization created by student body presidents of Utah's colleges and universities to train students in legislative procedure. The assembly meets once a year in the legislative chamber of the State Capitol to simulate the legislative process. A handbook of legislation passed at the three-day session is then presented to state legislators for their consideration. The session, which began Wednesday evening, will end Saturday at noon. "We're considering legislation to establish a state-funded scholarship program for students, delineate landlord-tenant responsibilities and provide mobile voter registration units for college campuses," said BYU Chapter President David Clark. The UIA may also take a stand on the equal rights amendment, capital punishment and liquor laws, according to Clark. Several Utah political leaders are scheduled to speak to the intercollegiate assembly, including Utah Governor Robin Hampton and Senator-elect Jake Garn. Utah Secretary of State Clyde Miller and House Speaker-elect Ronald Rencher have already addressed the student delegates.

Miller urged student involvement in politics, and Rencher proposed expanding Utah's legislative budget. Among other activities at the three-day assembly are committee meetings studying proposed legislation, a workshop in lobbying techniques, debates on the senate and house floors and assembly voting.

The UIA senate is composed of two delegates from each of ten Utah colleges and universities. Membership in the house is apportioned by school population. BYU sent 17 of the 50 house delegates. After the session a booklet will be printed including the legislation proposed, the votes received and a summary of the debates, Clark explained. "The delegates will then present the booklets to the state legislators in their districts," said Clark. Since the UIA is only one year old, it is too early to tell what influence it has, or can have, on state legislation, Clark noted. But state political leaders are already recognizing it as a potential influence, he added.

The UIA was organized last year by the student body president of all Utah colleges and universities. This is the second annual assembly to be held. BYU's chapter presently has about 40 members, according to Clark. It meets every Wednesday at 4 p.m. in 111 TMCB. Anyone interested may attend.

This semester the Political Science Department created a one-credit class in the legislative process, at the suggestion of the ASBYU Academics Office. Entitled "Political Science 500R: Legislative Relations," the class is mostly composed of UIA members.

Suit judge says tapes necessary

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has ordered the White House to turn over nine hours of Nixon administration tape recordings in connection with a civil suit stemming from arrests during a May 1971 anti-war demonstration on the Capitol steps.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant marks the first time a court order has sought to compel release of White House tapes in a civil suit.

In a court hearing Wednesday, lawyers for former President Richard M. Nixon said they would fight the order. A Justice Department attorney representing the White House said more time would be needed before the tapes could be produced.

Plaintiffs in the class-action suit are 1,200 persons who were arrested May 5, 1971 on the Capitol steps while attending a rally staged as part of a "May-day" antiwar effort.

The suit was brought by Rep. Ronald Dellums, D-Calif. a speaker at the rally. Dellums said the arrests interfered with his rights as a congressman and with the rights of several persons arrested.

Insightreading effort recommended at BYU

As part of a University-wide effort to improve the quality of learning at BYU, the University Book Program is sponsoring two books per semester as recommended reading for the entire faculty, staff and students.

According to Clayton Christensen, director of the Reading Program, it is hoped that through the independent reading, students and faculty will broaden their general education, and realize the potential for continual out of classroom learning.

The program is sponsored by the bookstore, the BYU Honors program and the ASBYU Academics Office. The program also has the support of the Faculty Advisory Council. Books sponsored as part of the University Books program are chosen to represent several parts of the academic spectrum.

The purpose of the program is to give students and faculty fresh insight into the thinking and direction of different academic disciplines.

This year the four books sponsored are: "The Image to Pseudo Events in America," by Daniel Boorstin, "Candide" by Voltaire, "The United States and China," by John K. Fairbank, and "The Closing Circle," by Barry Commoner.

According to Christensen, in order to promote wide reading, the Bookstore is running a special promotion on each book. Essay and book review contests will also be sponsored with Bookstore gift certificates offered to the winners, said Christensen.

Christensen said where possible, the authors of the books will be invited to campus to lecture. In all cases, debates, lectures, panel discussions and forums will be held to discuss the issues presented in each book.

It is hoped that these activities will encourage students to think clearly, circulate their ideas and challenge the opinions of others.

Current public views of hypnosis are moving away from the "bizarre" towards general acceptance and congeniality, noted the psychology colloquium speaker yesterday.

Dr. Leslie Cooper, professor of psychology, indicated that hypnosis is a therapeutic tool for treating repression. He related traditional and contemporary views of hypnosis to a handful of listeners in the Varsity Theatre.

"Hypnosis today is far more acceptable than it was in the past," said Dr. Cooper, in contrast to traditional public opinion which views it as "practically taboo."

People have had apprehensions about hypnosis because of their associations with it being "bizarre" and out of the stereotype of stage entertainment where hypnotized persons have been led into embarrassing situations.

Dr. Cooper said the therapist has to continually ask himself "what does hypnosis mean to me," referring to the role of the psychologist in the hypnotic situation.

"Hypnosis is not a toy, and unless we are competent and addressed in its uses, we should not play with it," Dr. Cooper drove home the importance of hypnosis in contemporary therapy by relating two local studies which gauged the ability of hypnosis as an anesthetic.

"Hypnosis in dentistry," said Dr. Cooper of the first study, "compared the use of a chemical as a deadening agent to that of hypnotic suggestion."

Patients undergoing operations in a hypnotic state reported less pain than those who were chemically induced.

The other study valued the use of hypnotic suggestion towards parts of the body as a form of alleviating migraine headaches, he said.

Dr. Cooper received his Ph.D. in psychology from the University of Illinois, after receiving his B.A. and M.A. from BYU.

Industries which don't automate in the 1970's won't be around to compete, according to John Wright, president of United Computing.

Wright told engineering and technology students at BYU that the "increase production of man and the dollar," is only going to happen through automation and the use of computers. He lectured Thursday in the Engineering, Sciences, and Technology Building.

In a slide presentation, Wright showed the advantages of using computers and programmers which run machines in industry. He said that to decrease consumer cost, production rates would need to be cut. This can be done through automation, he said.

Founder and president of United Computing of California, Wright invented a new language called UNIAPT, which can be used with mini-computers. In 1968 he presented the UNIAPT language and a mini-computer to BYU.

"This is the best investment I ever made," said Wright. The computer "translates data from written documents to computer language," he said. The contribution of the computer and language is valued at $12,000.

"APT," (Automatic Programmed Tools) is "English or another language substitute for geometrical instructions to program a machine for a definite construction process," said Wright.

He explained how APT is used for programming machines in industry to cut and shape metal to a specific design.

In the translation process, an engineering drawing is fed into a part program computer which changes the design into APT language. The tape which comes out with APT written on it is then put into key punched cards. Wright explained that the cards fed into a processing computer are then changed into a tape, which the industrial machine follows.

Wright gave a short history of automation technology which was on the planning board in the 1950's. In the 1960's the movement towards automation began, and in the late 1960's the computers were on the scene, he said.

In technological industry, the initial move was to "get the computer into the shop," said Wright. He said previously a computer had been paralleled with mahogany floors and ivory towers. As computers are used they become part of the industrial shop, said Wright. He added that shop floors have been cleaned up.

A film was shown by Wright which explained Unigraphics, which he said will completely revolutionize the area of computer graphics in the next five years.

In the film, Wright demonstrated computers which prepare and store graphic designs which can be used to program machines. The computers are smaller in size than many others, but are capable of programming large industrial machines.

License for liquor requested

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP)—The Rev. Frederick D. McCallin, a teetotaler himself, has stirred up controversy by seeking a liquor license for his Roman Catholic Church.

Father McCallin, 61, the pastor of St. Thomas More Roman Catholic church, wants to open a restaurant called The Padre at a parish center being built in the Denver suburbs. He thinks the restaurant should serve alcoholic beverages to attract customers so he has applied for a liquor license from the Arapahoe County Commission.

"The day is over when the church was closed and dark all week except Sunday," Father McCallin said. "The church must become part of people's lives. The church must be relevant."

He says other churches in the United States have liquor licenses and claims most of his parishioners like the idea. Some other people disagree.

"The Bible says that beer, wine and strong drink is a mockery," said Jim Carroll at a crowded county commission hearing on the license application this week. Carroll said he is assistant pastor at the First Baptist Church of Arapahoe County.

"I'm only a preacher and I could preach for hours against the evils of alcohol," Carroll added.

Earl F. Dodge, Chairman of the Colorado Prohibition party, also opposed granting the license. Dodge said serving alcohol at a church facility might corrupt the community's youth.

The commission is still considering the application and Father McCallin remains determined.

"People will just drink anyway," he said. "It's part of people's lives today. And we want people to come to our place and enjoy good fellowship."

Musical about plural wives to be presented on Tuesday

"Father, Mother, Mother and Mom," a musical comedy about plural marriages, will be presented Nov. 26 and on Dec. 3, the Academics Office announced Thursday.

The free performances will be in 321 ELWC at 8 p.m. Tickets are available at the Honors Program Office, 436 HBLL.

The play, written by Orson Scott Card, a BYU student, concerns the problems of an early Mormon father living in plural marriage.

Card plays the lead. Patricia Cummings, Chris Speirs and Kira Pratt play his wives.

Robert Stoddard, composer of the music for the production, directs.

Card, author of "Stone Tablets," "The Apostate" and "Gideon," feels that this is probably his best play, that it effectively communicates the feelings he wants to present.

The Academics Office and the Honors Program are presenting the play as part of the Agora Series.

Club plans survey

A sterling silverware and fine china design survey will be sponsored by Sigma Delta Omicron Nov. 25, according to Stephanie Millet, president-elect of SDO.

The survey will be conducted by a large tableware manufacturer from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the Smith Family Living

Campus Briefs

Center Stepdown Lounge, said Miss Millet.

About 150 students are needed to participate in the survey. Miss Millet urges all junior and senior students to participate.

Photos to be taken

Graduating Students will be recognized as BYU Centennial graduates in this year's issue of the BANYAN.

There will be a special place reserved for graduates, according to Deb Thorpe, business manager, in this issue. Photos will be taken at 116 ELWC. Deadline for pictures will be Dec. 20.

ARMY ROTC-

WHAT DOES THAT HAVE TO DO WITH ME?

We all believe that the Lord will fight our battles: but how? Will He do it while we are unconcerned and make no effort for our own safety when an enemy is upon us? If we make no effort to guard our towns, our houses, our cities, our wives and children; will the Lord guard them for us? He will not; but if we pursue the opposite course and strive to help Him accomplish His designs; then will He fight our battles. We are baptized for the remission of sins; but it would be quite as reasonable to expect remission of sins without baptism as to expect the Lord to fight our battles without our taking every precaution to be prepared to defend ourselves. The Lord requires us to be quite as willing to fight our battles as to have Him fight them for us. If we are not ready for an enemy when he comes upon us, we have not lived up to the requirements of Him who guides the ship of Zion or who dictates the affairs of His Kingdom.

Second-place harries earn spot in NCAA finals

BYU's second-place finish in Saturday's WAC cross country meet earned the Cougars a spot in the NCAA finals. Nov. 25, in Bloomington, Indiana.

UTEP took first-place honors with a sparkling score of 21. BYU followed with 56. Putting points on the board for BYU were Dave Johnson, Paul Cummings, Gary Cramer, Woody Franklin, and Leon Hansen.

"Dave Johnson was our big man this week," noted Assistant Coach Larry Berryhill. The slim senior from Delta, Utah, ran his best race of the year and finished sixth.

"All the coaches are extremely pleased with the performance of all our athletes," continued Berryhill. He pointed out BYU's score of 56 is being very good. "That's one of our better scores. Even in years we won it, we didn't have that good of a score."

The case of Leon Hansen illustrates Berryhill's point. Three years ago, Hansen was on BYU's WAC-winning team and finished 34th as the Cougar's fifth man. In Saturday's meet, Hansen placed 18th, again as the team's fifth man. Yet the Cougar's took second-place honors.

The course was the toughest BYU has run on yet this year, according to Berryhill. "If it wasn't up it was down," he said.

This week's NCAA meet features the twenty best teams from throughout the nation. "I feel we will be in the top ten, maybe in the top five," predicted Berryhill.

"UTEP and Oregon will be the top teams." "Paul Cummings strained a tendon on the side of his right foot," Berryhill said, "but he looks like he'll be all right." All other Cougars are in good shape physically.

The race will be six miles long and is flat except for one hill, Berryhill reported. The top 25 finishers will make all-American honors.

The BYU squad will fly to Bloomington, leaving tomorrow and returning Monday.

Narrow 5-4 win tunc Cats for soccer final

The BYU Soccer team tuned up for its final game of the fall season with a narrow win over Pan World of Salt Lake City. The victory marked its 13th win of the season against two losses.

The Soccer Club team played the All-Star J team at 4 p.m. in Field. Admission for games is free.

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO WITH YOUR BACHELOR'S DEGREE?

Have you considered a two-year professional graduate program?

The BYU MASTER OF PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION program provides preparation for leadership careers in the public sector. It also meets the needs of those seeking positions with public and private governmental research organizations as well as semi-private organizations whose purposes are public.

ONE OF THE GREATEST ASSETS OF THE BYU PROGRAM IS ITS SUCCESS WITH AN INTERSHIP PROGRAM. Ample opportunities exist for students to combine valuable, practical experience with their graduate degree. Internships have contributed significantly to placement success in the MPA Program. Interested students please attend:

Y professor featured in clarinet performance

One of the final works composed by Camille Saint-Saens will be featured in a clarinet recital to be performed by Dr. David M. Randall, associate professor of music at BYU.

Dr. Randall will present the recital tonight at 8 p.m. in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC. "Sonata in E-Flat Opus 167" by Saint-Saens will be one of the works performed.

Dr. Randall is a graduate of BYU and Indiana University. Dr. Randall is currently a clarinetist with the Faculty Woodwind Quintet and coordinator of the wind area of the Music Department.

Dr. Randall was formerly chief clarinetist with the University of Iowa Center of New Music and guest instructor at the University of Northern Colorado. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Iowa.

In the past, Dr. Randall has appeared in solo performances with local orchestras throughout Idaho, Utah, Arizona and the West Coast. He also performs approximately two recitals a year at BYU.

The "Sonata in E-Flat Opus 167" depicts the elegance and charm of life in Paris at the turn of the century.

"Sources III" for Two Performers will also be performed at the recital. This is a contemporary selection in which Dr. Harrison Powley will join Dr. Randall with the percussion.

Dr. David M. Randall will play the clarinet in a recital this evening.

Special lighting will be added to the percussion clarinet duet. The lighting for the composition will be done with 10 candles which will go out one by one until the room is left dark and the music ceases.

KBYU begins animal show

"Walsh's Animals" a new program produced by the Public Broadcasting Service, will premiere this evening at 7 p.m. on Channel 11, according to Claudia Nielsen, promotion director for KBYU.

Startling facts about vanishing species, scenes of animals in the wild and films about human abuse and ignorance is what "Walsh's Animals" is all about.

John Walsh, 33-year old field officer for the International Society for the Protection of Animals is the host, star and virtual stunt man of the series.

This week's program, "The Three Rs", deals with the rodents and their relatives and introduces the viewer to the world's largest rodent, the Capybara. One hundred pounds and four feet long, he has webbed feet, munches grass and likes to have his tummy rubbed.

Reknown orchestra to perform

The internationally famous Los Angeles Philharmonic will return to BYU after three years to appear in concert at the Marriott Center Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The 105-piece orchestra, under the direction of Zubin Mehta, is currently on a tour in which the performers will play 12 concerts during November and December in the western United States, according to Dr. A. Harold Goodman, chairman of the BYU Music Department.

"Variations on America" by Charles Ives will open the BYU program and will be followed with "Variations on an original theme, Enigma," Op. 36 by Edward Elgar. After the intermission the orchestra will play Ludwig van Beethoven's "Symphony No. 5."

The orchestra just completed a six-week tour of seven European countries in which 32 concerts were presented in 20 cities beginning at London's Royal Albert Hall and ending in October in New York's Carnegie Hall, according to Dr. Goodman.

The number of concerts played by the orchestra has been expanded to more than 200 a year. In addition, they give approximately 60 concerts in public schools each year. From July to September, the Philharmonic moves to its summer home, Hollywood Bowl, the world-famous amphitheatre, for another thirty concerts.

Coeds to play in joint recital

A joint recital will be given Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Madsen Recital Hall by Julie Proctor on the trumpet and Cynthia Myers on the trombone.

Miss Myers is a graduate student majoring in trombone performance from Hampton, N.H. and Miss Proctor is an undergraduate student majoring in music education from Sandy, Utah.

Selections will include "The Hollow Men" by Peeschetti, "The Quiet City" by Copland, a sonata by George McKay, "Darryl's Song" by Miss Myers and several others.

Breast-feeding gives babies more nutrients

By DR. MARY K. REDFORD
Health Center Internist

Q. What is your opinion of breastfeeding and what should I do to prepare to breast feed my baby?
A. Breastfeeding is excellent for the relaxed person. Breast milk is not only the natural food for infants but is also the ideal food for full term infants during the first few months of life. If the mother's diet is quantitatively adequate and properly balanced, the baby will receive necessary nutrients with the exception of Vitamin D, possibly C and iron. Human milk is readily available at proper temperature wherever the mother may be and always free of contaminating bacteria. In addition, errors in preparation of a formula are avoided by breastfeeding.

Most doctors feel that breastfed babies have fewer upsets and illnesses than bottle fed babies. To begin preparing for breastfeeding, properly fitted brassiers to support the breasts prior to delivery and during the nursing periods are important. Retracted nipples may be benefited by daily manual or breast pump traction during the latter weeks of pregnancy. Coco butter to keep the nipples moist and to prevent drying have been advocated by some. Proper care, cleaning and the proper way to nurse will be given by the nurse or doctor after delivery. It is best to discuss your desires to breastfeed with your doctor as he may have additional or special instructions for you.

Q. What is the purpose of the pap smear?
A. The pap smear was a test introduced by Papanicolaou in 1943 for the early detection of cervix and vaginal cancer. It has proven to be a reliable and simple test. It is recommended every female under the age 35 have a pap smear exam once a year and above 35 twice a year. This test is being done at the BYU Health Center.

Q. What health problems are associated with high blood pressure?
A. Hypertension is a disease process in which the blood pressure is consistently elevated above 140/90. The blood pressure normally rises with age and varies from one occasion to another. Hypertension may be caused by or associated with such disorders as obesity, diabetes, heart disease, kidney disease, atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) and stress. It is frequently present without symptoms and is often found on routine physical exams or in conjunction with other disorders. Hypertension accelerates the development of coronary and cerebral atherosclerosis so that hemorrhages or thrombosis (strokes) are common sequelae. The best way to detect or prevent this disease is to have annual physical exams and follow your doctor's instructions.

Chicano coalition calls for resources, activity

By FAYE SHELKOFKY
Universe Staff Writer

The most important necessity now for Chicano students is to tap the natural resources at BYU and get Spanish-speaking Americans involved, according to George Rodriguez.

Rodriguez, president of the newly formed Mexican American Coalition, called a meeting last week to find out how many Mexican-American students are on campus.

"We are trying to find as many Mexican-American students as we can to help us," said Rodriguez. "We are not foreign or Indian students, so files aren't kept. We are trying to reach them to be help within and outside of our club."

During the meeting, the purposes of the club, outlined to ASBYU, were discussed. To have a voice on campus to instigate a more meaningful curriculum and programs dealing with the Mexican-American, which would benefit the entire student body.

To serve as a resource to the community. To perpetuate and encourage studies that will prepare Mexican-American students to be productive and competitive members of society and to benefit their own ethnic group.

"To create awareness of the Mexican-American heritage and culture and to appreciate its beauty, understand its meaning and insure its continuation."

"We are trying to educate and professionalize the Chicano," said Gloria Widger, executive assistant. "One way we are doing this is to see what the university offers in the way of Spanish-American studies," she said. Edward Galindo, Chicano studies coordinator, explained, "We are outlining a list of what the faculty is doing in this area to see if we can benefit from it."

The club is currently enlisting the aid of Dr. J. H. Kleg, coordinator of Spanish-speaking studies at BYU.

The club is also currently engaged in seeking funds for scholarships and grants for Mexican-American students. "We are currently enlisting the aid of club members to do research on foundations to promote and establish scholarships whereby students can benefit fully from the education program," said Ernest Ramos, financial director of the Mexican-American Student Coalition.

The club is requesting the aid of all Spanish-speaking students to become involved. "We have a heterogeneous group of Chicanos. Some prefer to be called Mexican-American," said Rodriguez. "Our goal is to unify ourselves, regardless of what we call ourselves."

U.S. deficit may reach $10 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration has raised its estimate of the budget deficit for the current fiscal year and labeled chronic federal deficits second only to inflation as a public menace.

Even with revenue from the proposed 5 per cent income tax surcharge and reduced federal spending during fiscal 1975.

"The budget will still be in deficit by some $8 billion to $10 billion for this year," Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Wednesday.

Previously, the Ford administration estimated publicly that the 1975 deficit would be $6 billion, if Congress approved its proposed spending cuts.

Without these cuts, administration sources said the 1975 deficit now could soar to $13 billion, up from a 1974 deficit of $3.4 billion.

The budget outlook has been clouded by rampant inflation, which forces costs up, and recession, which reduces federal tax revenues. Ford conceded last week the administration would be unable to realize its goal of a balanced budget in 1976.

"If we can keep the deficit within a reasonable range in fiscal 1975, we can then move toward balance in later years," Simon said.

Consumer Tips

Are substantial savings realized when buying the large economy size? The magazine, in its book, "The Great American Food Hoax," said it is a good idea to check the unit cost of the items to be purchased. There are exceptions, but usually buying the large economy size saves money.

Margolius found that medium and large sizes typically save 15 per cent per ounce over smaller sizes and extra-large sizes save an additional 10 per cent.

The biggest savings were on food products, especially cereals. Smallest savings were on household cleaning products, though even there savings on large sizes averaged 15 per cent.

Children's Snacks

A child who is only a "moderate" TV viewer is exposed to 5,000 ads for food per year according to nutritional authority Professor Catherine Kelsey-Hepburn of Cornell University in 1976.

A Cornell graduate student researched the problem and confirmed that 50-70 per cent of the children shows' advertisements were for food almost of which are non-nutritional snack products, compared to 26 per cent for adults.

Y students can obtain legal help

By BARRY LYNN RISHTON
Universe Staff Writer

BYU students who have problems or questions concerning legal matters can receive help from the ASBYU Ombudsman Office.

According to Bob Henrie, ASBYU Ombudsman, "the office is not in a position to give legal advice. We simply attempt to channel students to those areas where they can be best advised."

Henrie said that students who come into his office usually have questions which fall into three major categories.

Most students come with relatively simple problems or procedural questions, said Henrie. Prepared handouts are given to the students to inform them about procedures to take to help solve their problems.

Henrie cited small claims court, and traffic appeals as examples where students often need help.

Problems which are individualistic in nature can be better handled through attorney supervision. The Ombudsman has an attorney on retainer for advice on personal legal problems. The Ombudsman's office serves as a clearing house.

Depth problems, such as criminal acts or law suits are handled through consultation with attorneys.

"Twenty-five Utah County Bar attorneys participate in our legal consultation program. The student visits an attorney at his office for a half hour consultation period and pays $5," said Henrie.

"The attorney consultation program is for consulting, not attorney representation," Henrie said. The Ombudsman office sets up the consultation appointments.

"The vast majority of the legal problems brought in by students can usually be solved without seeing an attorney," he said.

One of the latest problems presented to Ombudsman involved a speeding ticket given at Mantia, said Ray Smith, director of legal services.

The student complained that the citation and fine given were very high. Ombudsman contacted BYU Security, who advised the student to pay the fine which was normal.

"A lot of legal problems are created when a student gets in a situation he can't get out of, such as a contract, and comes to us to get out of it," Smith said.

Henrie advises students that the function of the Ombudsman office is educational. The Ombudsman is interested in helping the student solve his own problems.

"Also included within the legal services is a will program as well as a new attorney forum program where a panel of attorneys will be brought in to participate in a discussion with students on topics of general legal concern," Henrie said.

Dr. C. Selby Herrin, BYU director of research of African mites, approves a mite drawing by illustrator Jerry Norton. The drawing is about 2,100 times the size of an average adult mite.

Y researches mites obtained in Africa

Dr. C. Selby Herrin spends his working day looking at mites. He has 100,000 of them—all from Africa and all dead. The biggest are about one sixteenth of an inch long. The smallest are like fly specks.

They are so small that Dr. Herrin has to use a microscope to view them. Under the scope they look like monsters in a science-fiction movie.

In spite of their small size, they come in so many varieties (species) that the entomologist is using a computer to sort and classify them. So far he has found 12 species that have never before been classified.

The mites were collected by the Smithsonian Institution's Mammal Division about 10 years ago as part of a disease control study. Now the U.S. Army's Medical Research and Development Command is interested in finding out more about the disease-carrying parasites.

It is spending about $40,000 a year on a research contract with the Center for Health and Environmental Studies at BYU to get the information. Dr. Herrin is director for the research which is known as "The African Project."

Use of computers to classify animals is a relatively new development in the field of taxonomy, but it is catching on fast, according to Dr. Herrin.

He said there are as many as 167 identifying characteristics which can vary from mite to mite, and working up an effective code for classification "really taxes your brain."

"When we deal with such a large group of species, it is hard to store all that information in your head," the entomologist said. result, relationships a mite species are known."

The Army and Smithsonian Institution that when the dif species are better to co mite-carried diseases in and animals.

Dr. Herrin and his have prepared nearly 6 of the mite specimen scientific examination. I used multi-variable stat programs on the compu classify them.

Great Depression of 1930's reminisced

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — "There was worry, anger, joy and love all jumbled together, and I have a deep feeling of unhappiness I want to forget."

Those are the words of Gertrude Haltman, and they apply to the Great Depression of the 1930s.

They appear with the recollections of more than a dozen other amateur authors in a 22-page booklet on sale during a fund-raising fair at the Kenosha

Senior Citizens Center.

Mrs. Martion Bach, program coordinator for the community activities center, said the pamphlet was a hot sales item.

Mrs. Bach said members of a creative writing class, many of them retired persons who recall the deprivation of the 1930s, "wanted to contribute something," and they put together their "Reminiscences of Depression Days," a collection of essays and poems.

Mrs. Haltman, for example, relates the frustration felt by her husband who was a meat department manager in a grocery store until his title was changed to clerk which cut his salary to exactly one-third of his original pay.

Lillian Lundin compares her experiences with today's cost of living, recalling seven-cent bus fares and hamburger for 10 cents a pound.

"We saved pennies, and it seemed we bought everything with pennies," Mrs. Lundin said. "Once, when the pennies were exhausted, we sold dad's gold mlays from teeth that were extracted, and bought cherries to can and eat."

"We had company for dinner one evening, and Lois, 3, said: 'Daddy, are these cherries from your gold teeth?'"

"Wealth we did not have. But there was good health and lots of love in our home."

governor declare indidacy

LANTA, GA. (AP) — Jimmy Carter today will announce on 12 his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination. Carter is scheduled to appear before the National Club in Washington, D.C., that day and later plans to dress to local supporters in Atlanta. Carter, 38, is a Democrat — Sen. — M. "Scoop" Jackson, S. Rep. Morris K. Udall, Arizona — also are reported to be presidential candidates. Carter's announcement will be made in Washington line between Dec. 8 and 10 of Congress. Carter is expected to lead the Democratic nation in 1972. Associated Press said that Udall, 52, would announce his candidacy for an appearance in New Hampshire this weekend.

Merger in the works for newspaper chains

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Shareholders of Knight Newspapers, Inc., and Ridder Publications, Inc., have approved a merger that will give the combined company the largest circulation of any U.S. newspaper group. The merger was approved Wednesday and takes effect Nov. 30. The new firm, Knight-Ridder Newspapers, Inc., will publish 35 daily newspapers in 16 states with a combined daily circulation of about 3.8 million. Gannett Newspapers, with 58 daily papers and a combined daily circulation of about 2.5 million, remains the largest group in number of papers. Lee Hills, chairman and chief executive officer of Knight, and Bernard H. Ridder Jr., president and chief executive officer of Ridder, said individual newspapers in the new group will retain their autonomy in editorial and business matters. The two companies will dispose of their broadcasting interests and devote themselves exclusively to newspaper publishing, they said. Hills told Knight shareholders who approved the merger in Miami: "We will continue to have the same abiding desire to be both good newspapermen and good businessmen. We have long held the view that quality and profits go hand in hand."

Ridder told his company's shareholders in New York, "The perfect geographical fit of the two organizations is apparent to anybody who looks at a map of the U.S. Their newspapers are concentrated in the Eastern one-third of the nation while we extend from the Midwest to the Far West." Hills will serve as chairman and chief executive officer of the new company. Ridder will be vice chairman and chairman of the operating committee. Alvah H. Chapman Jr., president of Knight, will be president of Knight-Ridder. Ridder will continue to serve as president of Ridder Publications, which will operate as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Knight-Ridder. Headquarters for Knight-Ridder will be in the Miami Herald building, present headquarters of Knight. There will be 10 directors from Knight and five directors from Ridder on the company board. Knight shareholders will own about two-thirds of the more than 15 million shares of the new company, with Ridder shareholders having the remainder. The announcement said all Ridder broadcast properties have been placed in a voting trust pending their disposal. Knight publishes daily newspapers in Ohio, Florida, North Carolina, Georgia, Michigan, Kentucky and Pennsylvania. It has a number of subsidiaries.

#3 Accept the addition of a New Students Council as outlined in Article III, Section II, part I, and delete part (G). YES — NO —

*Changes are indicated by putting parentheses around sections of existing constitution which are being deleted. New sections are underlined.

PROPOSED ASBYU CONSTITUTION

PREAMBLE

We, the Association Students of Brigham Young University, recognizing as the ultimate source of our authority the Board of Trustees of this institution to promote the general good of the university community, to render (those) services necessary and proper to our fellow students, and to harmonize in both purpose and principle with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, do ordain and establish this ASBYU Constitution.

ARTICLE I. ASSOCIATED STUDENTS OF BRIGHAM YOUNG UNIVERSITY (THE STUDENT ASSOCIATION)

All full-time students of Brigham Young University shall be members of the (Student Association) Associated Students of Brigham Young University.

ARTICLE II. LEGISLATIVE POWERS

Section I. Definition

The legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in the Executive Council, which shall make all laws necessary and proper for the execution of the powers granted by this Constitution. The Executive Council shall be composed of all elected officers, and shall be presided over by the ASBYU President.

Section II. Powers and Duties

- A quorum of the Executive Council shall consist of a majority of the elected officers. A majority vote of the quorum present shall be necessary to enact all resolutions and bills, unless otherwise provided by law.
- The weekly meetings of the Executive Council shall be open to members of the ASBYU (Student Association), with the exception of those meetings declared "Executive Session" by the ASBYU President. Any member of the ASBYU (Student Association) has the right to present a legitimate matter before the Executive Council according to the rules and procedures established by the Council.
- The Executive Council shall be required upon the initiative of the students to vote on any bill bearing the signatures of one percent of the members of the ASBYU (Student Association).
- The Executive Council shall be required to submit to the ASBYU (Student Association) for referendum any bill bearing the signatures of one percent of the members of the ASBYU (Student Association). All such bills shall become law with a concurring majority vote of those students voting, provided that not less than ten percent of the ASBYU (Student Association) is in the voting.
- Initiation of impeachment proceedings against a member of the Executive Council shall be effected by either of the following actions:
  - Submission to the Attorney General of a petition carrying the signatures of at least five percent of the ASBYU (Student Association) or
  - A majority vote of all members of the Executive Council, excluding the officer being impeached.
- All impeachment proceedings will be presided over by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, presided over by the Attorney General, and tried by the Executive Council. An impeached officer shall be removed only by a three-fourths vote of the Executive Council, each member casting one vote, excluding the person being impeached.
- The preparation of the ASBYU (Student Association) budget shall be the responsibility of the outgoing Executive Council, subject to modification and final approval by the incoming Executive Council.
- The Executive Council shall establish financial policies and procedures consistent with those of Brigham Young University, with the exception that all books and records reflecting ASBYU budgets and financial transactions shall be available for inspection by any member of the ASBYU (Student Association) at reasonable times and under reasonable circumstances.
- Unless re-elected by the new Executive Council, all laws enacted by the outgoing Executive Council, except those concerning appropriation of ASBYU funds and election procedures, shall expire 20 (60) days following the election of the incoming Council.

ARTICLE III. EXECUTIVE POWERS

Section I. Definition

The executive powers herein granted shall be vested in the elected ASBYU officers.

Section II. Powers and Duties

- The ASBYU President shall:
  - Be the official representative of the ASBYU (Student Association), responsible for the general coordination and administration of all phases of student government, and shall exercise all executive power not otherwise specified in this article.
  - Preside over Executive Council meetings, and be responsible for preparation of the agenda.
  - Have authority to veto resolutions or bills passed by the Executive Council. Such a veto can be overridden by a two-thirds vote of the Executive Council.
  - Have authority to call special sessions of the Executive Council.
  - Have authority to call general convocations of the ASBYU (Student Association) and preside over such gatherings.
  - Have authority to veto a program or activity of any office. Such a veto shall be overridden by a petition signed by two-thirds of the Executive Council and submitted to the ASBYU President.
  - Make appointments to fill vacancies in the Executive Council, with the consent of two-thirds of the Executive Council.
  - Appoint the Justices of the Supreme Court, Judges of inferior courts, and the Attorney General of the ASBYU (Student Association), with the consent of two-thirds of the Executive Council.
  - Form a committee consisting of the outgoing ASBYU President, the outgoing Ombudsman, and himself, and select a new Ombudsman to succeed the outgoing member of the Executive Council, with the consent of two-thirds of the Executive Council.
  - Administer ASBYU (Student Association) elections and referendums.
- The Executive Vice President shall assist the ASBYU President, preside over the Executive Council in his absence, and shall become ASBYU President in the event that the office is declared vacant by a three-fourths vote of the remaining Executive Council members.
- The Vice President of Academics shall be responsible for supplementing the academic program of the university by providing the students increased opportunities for academic growth and advancement.
- The Vice President of Athletics shall be responsible for the promotion of student support of and participation in various athletic events.
- The Vice President of Culture shall be responsible for activities which promote cultural growth and appreciation, including programs of student participation.
- The Vice President of Finance shall be responsible for the (preparation and) supervision of the ASBYU budget (of the Student Association).
- The Vice President of Freshman Involvement shall be responsible for programs to inform and involve freshmen in university activities.
- G. The Vice President of Social Activities shall be responsible for the promotion of wholesome and enjoyable social events and programs.
- H. The Vice President of Student Community Services shall be responsible for making available to students both service projects and their own involvement.
- I. The Vice President of Organizations and Student Involvement shall be responsible for the coordination of the activities and programs of campus social interest groups, these groups shall include, but are not limited to the Married Students Council, the Women's Council, the Student Government, and all campus clubs and student organizations.
- J. The Vice President of Organizations and Student Involvement shall be responsible for the coordination of activities and programs of campus clubs and organizations.
- K. The Vice President of Women's Activities shall be responsible for programs which enhance the academic, cultural, social, and service aspects of the lives of BYU women.

ARTICLE IV. JUDICIAL POWERS

The judicial powers herein granted shall be vested in an ASBYU Supreme Court, consisting of one Chief Justice and four Associate Justices, and in such inferior courts as are created by law. All justices shall be appointed, and the Chief Justice designated, by the ASBYU President, subject to approval by two-thirds of the Executive Council. All justices shall hold office until resignation (or termination of their membership in the Student Association) their failure to register for fall or winter semester.

Section I. Powers and Duties

- Original jurisdiction over issues of constitutionality shall be vested in the Supreme Court. The original and appellate jurisdiction of the ASBYU Courts over non-constitutional issues shall be provided by law.
- A decision of the Supreme Court shall be rendered upon a concurring vote of a majority of the Supreme Court Justices.
- The judiciary shall render decisions only in actual cases or controversies, but may render advisory opinions upon request.
- The Supreme Court by a majority decision shall appoint a new ASBYU President from the Executive Council membership in the event that the offices of both ASBYU President and Executive Vice President are declared vacant by unanimous vote of the remaining Executive Council members.
- Supreme Court Justices may hold no other elected or judicial positions in the ASBYU (Student Association).
- Temporary vacancies in the judiciary shall be filled by appointment by the ASBYU President with the consent of two-thirds of the Executive Council.

ARTICLE V. REGULATIONS GOVERNING ASBYU OFFICERS

Section I. Qualifications for Office

- No candidate for office may be on academic or disciplinary probation.
- All candidates for office must possess a minimum cumulative grade point average of 2.25 for all university credits or a minimum grade point average of 3.0 for the one semester prior to nomination. All officers shall maintain, while in office, a minimum grade point average of 2.25 or they shall be discharged from office.
- All elected officers, except the Vice President of Organizations and Student (Freshman) Involvement, shall have been members of the ASBYU (Student Association) for two semesters before the semester or term during which they assume office.
- Each candidate for office of Vice President of Finance shall have been approved prior to nomination, on the basis of proper training, by a committee created by law for that purpose.
- Each candidate for the office of Executive Vice President shall be a nominating of a candidate for the office of ASBYU President.

Section II. Terms of Office

- Each elected officer, except the Vice President of Organizations and Student (Freshman) Involvement, shall be responsible for the activities of his office from the beginning of Spring Term following his election until the conclusion of the following Winter Semester.
- Each elected officer, (except the Vice President of Freshman Involvement), shall be a full-time student throughout his year in office, excluding, at his option, the two-month Summer Term. During the Summer Term he shall have authority to appoint an agent to act in his place under such terms and conditions as the elected officer shall deem appropriate.
- The Vice President of Organizations and Student (Freshman) Involvement shall be responsible for the activities of his office from the time of his election during Fall Semester until the end of the sixth week of the next Fall Semester (until the end of Winter Semester), during which term of office he must be a full-time student (and a member of the Freshman Class).
- Oath of Office
Before an elected officer can assume office, he must take the following oath of affirmation from the Supreme Court Chief Justice: "I do solemnly affirm that I will faithfully administer the responsibilities of the office of ASBYU (Student Association) uphold the Constitution of the Associated Students of Brigham Young University, and sustain and promote the standards of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints."

Section III. Election Procedures for ASBYU Officers

- The general elections for ASBYU officers shall take place during Winter Semester, and shall not exceed three weeks duration from the deadline for nominations to the final day of balloting.
- Only two candidates shall appear on the ballot for each office in the final elections. The person elected to each office shall be the candidate who receives a majority of votes, except in the event of a written candidate, when a plurality shall suffice.
- Further policies and procedures for all ASBYU elections shall be established with the consent of two-thirds of the Executive Council and shall be administered by an election committee appointed by the ASBYU President.
- The Vice President of Organizations and Student (Freshman) Involvement shall be elected by a majority of the votes cast in the Fall Semester (Freshman Class) elections. Only two candidates shall appear on the ballot in the final elections, which shall be concluded before the end of the sixth week of Fall Semester. (Membership in the Freshman Class shall be determined by the University administration.)

ARTICLE VI. AMENDMENTS

Section I. Initiation

Amendments to this Constitution may be initiated by a concurring vote of two-thirds of the Executive Council, or by petitions presented to the Executive Council bearing the signatures of five percent of the ASBYU (Student Association).

Section II. Publication

Proposed amendments must be published in the school newspaper at least ten school days prior to the date on which they are submitted to the ASBYU (Student Association) for ratification. An open forum shall be called for members of the ASBYU (Student Association) to discuss the proposed amendments prior to balloting.

Section III. Ratification

Amendments shall become part of this Constitution upon concurring vote of two-thirds of those students voting, provided that not less than ten percent of the ASBYU (Student Association) participate in the voting.

Reporter slaps judiciary secrecy

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The Watergate case provides an example of a dangerous trend toward the conduct of judicial proceedings in secret, a Washington legal reporter said Wednesday.

Jack C. Landau of the Newhouse Newspapers said the increasing use of "gag orders" by judges threatens the right of the news media to report what is going on in the courts.

A judge on the same panel defended the courts and said they are not enemies of a free press. He urged cooperation between newsmen and the courts.

Landau told the 41st annual convention of the Associated Press Managing Editors that "the Washington Post could never have broken the Watergate story if it had obeyed the gag order."

The order directed principals in the case not to discuss it with reporters.

Landau said the editors should be prepared to fight the courts "every time they step on the First Amendment."

Airline to halt drinks

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — National Airlines told the Civil Aeronautics Board Wednesday that it will stop offering free alcoholic beverages to coach passengers on domestic flights.

In a letter to the CAB, J. Dan Brock, National vice president for marketing, said the drink giveaways will end Jan. 14.

National began its free-drink service after resuming operation last month following a 108-day mechanics strike. The Miami-based carrier said it initiated the service as a catchup move because Delta Air Lines was offering free champagne on some flights.

A spokesman for Eastern Airlines, which reluctantly followed National's practice last month, said the firm would "obviously stop the service if National finally moves in the right direction."

Eastern executives complained that the practice could cost the industry as much as $100 million a year and said non-drinking passengers should not be asked to subsidize the cost of the complimentary alcoholic beverages.

Service Office sees successful Sub for Santa

By HOWARD E. CHINN
Universe Staff Writer

Sub for Santa seems to be well underway and promises to be a great success again this year, according to Sylvia Law of the Student Community Services Office.

Miss Law said the program was initiated as a means of providing Christmas for children who come from needy homes. She said needy people wishing to apply for Sub for Santa must submit an application to the BYU Division of Family Services. She said the applications are then considered and approved according to need. Then the names of needy families are sent to Student Community Services.

Miss Law added that campus branches and clubs interested in participating in Sub for Santa, should contact the student community services office for names of needy families.

Miss Law said once the branches and clubs receive the names it is up to them how the program is carried out.

Miss Law pointed out, however, that they would like to see presents geared to help children further develop a talent they may have.

She said when the program is over, branches and clubs are requested to notify her office as to the success of the program, so her office can determine whether or not to keep the program going. So far, she said, the program has been a great success year after year.

The program to date is moving right along. Families were assigned to the participating groups at the last meeting. More names will be available at the next meeting on Nov. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the Wilkinson Center.

Finally, Miss Law said, all who want families will be able to get them. If any branch or organization does not have a family yet, there is still time to participate. She said any further information is available through Student Community Services.

Volume of meat to rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food shoppers will see a big bulge next month in the supply of beef, turkey, dry beans and dry peas compared with the holiday season a year ago, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

Although the department did not predict price rises for those items, officials said that "increased supplies can often mean better values for both volume buyers and consumers."

The December outlook was in a "food marketing alert" compiled by USDA for distribution to food wholesalers and retail stores and to such large-volume buyers as hotels, restaurants and other institutions.

Beef was highlighted with a notation that December output is expected to be a record high and therefore in "plentiful" supply.

But in another report Wednesday by the department's Outlook and Situation Board, experts said consumers can expect retail meat prices to climb during the first half of 1975.

"Larger beef and veal production probably will be mostly offset by smaller production of pork, lamb and mutton," the board said. "Thus, if meat production is the same, retail meat prices likely will advance."

Override of veto shunned by Congressional panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional panel decided Wednesday against trying to overturn President Ford's veto of a bill that limits the liability of the nuclear power industry in case of an atomic accident.

The veto had stemmed from Ford's opposition to an amendment contained in the bill, rather than to the measure's main provisions.

The decision by the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy was hailed as a victory by environmentalists, who are attempting to halt the increase in construction of nuclear power plants throughout the country.

Sen. Caryl Chessman, D-Wis. said the decision gives Congress the chance to hold extensive hearings into power plant safety and "the role that should be assigned to atomic energy in the next half-century."

for five years the Price-Anderson Atomic Energy Act.

The President said he vetoed the measure because of a Nelson amendment which would have given Congress the opportunity of killing the extensions at a later date if a pending report indicates that further nuclear growth would present an unacceptable safety risk.

Ford said the procedure, which would have allowed Congress to kill the extension by passing a resolution that needs no presidential signature, was unconstitutional.

Nelson said during Senate debate on the bill in August that a long extension of the act "would wed the nation to atomic power, despite serious safety questions and without sufficient consideration of the respective roles of new energy sources that will emerge from research and development programs."

"Industry spokesmen have declared that without government sharing of liability and the imposition of strict liability limits, private industry would be extremely reluctant to develop atomic power plants," Nelson said.

He contended that this makes it more important that safety hearings be held quickly.

Ford vetoed a bill which would have extended

More Utah fossil finds forecast by Y scientist

The recent discovery of the skeleton of a mammoth in Salt Lake County is only a "scratch on the surface" of what could be found in Utah if more people were on the lookout for fossils, says paleontologist Dr. Wade E. Miller.

Utah contains a tremendous wealth of Pleistocene or Ice Age fossils, including remains of camels, mammoths, ground sloths, giant beavers, bison, musk oxen, mastodons and saber-toothed cats, the BYU scientist said.

Great potential
The western desert is the best place in the United States for finding fossilized bones because the area has not been covered by heavy vegetation. There is considerable evidence that Utah is rich in fossil materials. But of all the western states, it has been looked at the least, Dr. Miller said. "There is great potential here."

The unearthing earlier this month of a fossilized mammoth in Sandy, south of Salt Lake City, was hailed as an "exciting" discovery because it is rare in Utah to find a complete skeleton of this prehistoric animal.

The mammoth was found one foot beneath the lawn of an apartment house when the manager dug a trench to install a sprinkler system.

Dr. James H. Madsen Jr., the University of Utah paleontologist who directed unearthing operations, said the mammoth probably stood 10 feet at the shoulder and weighed about seven tons. The skeleton has been taken to the Utah Museum of Natural History at the university for preservation and display.

Dr. Miller, who helped excavate the fossils, said such discoveries need not be rare. Numerous fossils will start turning up once people realize that many areas of Utah are rich in bone deposits.

After the mammoth find was made public, Dr. Miller said several persons called him to report fossils they had found while camping, hiking, hunting or working on construction projects.

Valuable materials
"These are valuable materials which help scientists determine past climates and learn more about life forms that inhabited the state during the Pleistocene epoch," he said. Unfortunately, many fossils are relegated to garages and basements—or they end up as door stops or paperweights where they are of no use for scientific research.

The paleontologist explained that persons who find fossils don't need to give them up, but it would be of great benefit to the scientific world if the finds were reported so they could be examined by experts.

Dr. Miller said anywhere the ground is broken is a potential spot for fossil finds.

Senate passes money bill, sees $400 million savings

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed an $8.3 billion supplemental money bill Wednesday 65-18 after voting to cut travel expenses of federal employees by 25 percent.

Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-De., sponsor of the travel amendment, estimated it would save at least $400 million in the rest of the current fiscal year, which ends next June 30.

$2 Billion
The government had planned to spend almost $2 billion in the year on such expenses, Roth said.

The Senate included in the bill $200,000 for former President Richard M. Nixon's transition to private life, the same amount as voted by the House.

This item will not be in conference and is fixed at $650,000 less than President Ford asked for his predecessor.

The measure also would bar use of any federal funds to turn over to Nixon his White House tapes or other materials until Congress passes separate legislation to settle their ownership.

Senate debate
The supplemental bill has been debated in the Senate since Oct. 10, before the congressional election recess. It is the catch-all money bill for fiscal 1975, more than 40 floor amendments were offered to it.

Most of these would have added to the bill, but its managers were able to defeat most of them with the argument that the legislation already was far beyond Ford's budget.

As it came to the Senate floor from its Appropriations Committee, the bill was $38 million over the budget.

The measure now goes to conference with the House, which had approved $285 million less than the Senate. The bulk of the money in the bill is for education and housing programs.

Senior coed featured in ELWC Art Gallery

By CAROL ANASTASI
Universe Staff Writer

Stephanie Clark, a senior working towards her Bachelor of Fine Arts in illustration in April, is exhibiting a one-woman show in the Wilkinson Art Gallery now through Nov. 30.

Portions of her work are from a series of historical drawings completed as a final project for graduation. Drawn in pen and ink, three of the drawings, "Chris' Great Uncle," "Aunt Daisy" and "Promontory" all depict people from the past in striking black and white contrast.

While claiming no hereditary traits of her artistic talent from her parents, Miss Clark said she has enjoyed drawing and painting since early childhood.

"My parents have always encouraged me, I've taken art classes since fifth grade and continued up through high school. After graduation, a scholarship enabled me to complete a year of instruction at the Art Center College of Design in L.A. Calif.," she said.

There are several other historical drawings, all of the same unique quality that are composed of sharp, stringent, deliberate lines which outline and shape the subjects. Her style is spontaneous and free—she prefers not using graphical instruments whenever possible.

Miss Clark's choice of mediums range from pencil, pen and ink, acrylic, oil, water colors and colored pencil to etchings and woodcut.

One of her favorite compositions, "Book Week," was drawn with colored pencils as a class project. Other free assignment projects have included the designing of a cover in acrylic paints for the book "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," a cover design for "The Friend" and several self-portraits.

Miss Clark's main ambition is to become a freelance magazine illustrator. "It's really ideal for a woman. Now, I'd like to work full time, but in the future, part-time illustration would be fine for a family situation," she said.

Some of her work has been published. Last spring, Miss Clark designed and did the lay-out work for a brochure on The Festival of Mormon Arts. She also illustrated a story in "The Friend" in the August 1974 issue.

Films produced on tight budgets

Money to burn and a good imagination are the prerequisites for a class in motion picture production offered by the communications department at BYU.

Fifteen-minute films completely written, directed and produced by students in Comms. 272 are premiering this week, according to Wallace M. Barrus of the communications department.

"The room where the films are shown can accommodate only those students taking the classes, but the best films will also be shown in the Film Festival during the Mormon Festival of Arts," he said.

The class is an introduction to every aspect of motion picture production. The first half of the semester is spent in learning film-making techniques, cameras, lighting and screen directing. The students are basically concerned with learning production methods and budgeting, Barrus explained.

Each student writes or adapts his own script and converts it into a story board. Individual scenes are represented with pictures and an explanation written under them. This is the planning board and is turned in to the instructor for approval, according to Barrus.

Then the student chooses his cast and begins rehearsals. According to Barrus, the aim of the class is to learn about film production, not to produce great film writers.

Each student is responsible for his own film, processing, transporting, costumes, equipment and any promotional expenses he may incur.

The student producers submit a budget of total expenses for their film, plus an additional budget showing the cost if the film were produced for a major client.

"One of the recent films, which was a more ambitious effort than most cost the student $53.28," said Barrus. He estimated that cost to a client for television release would have been $22,161.

Super 8 film is used in the class and therefore cost can be kept to a minimum if the student is frugal, he explained.

One of the greatest benefits of the class is that the students gain experience in communicating and working with other people. It also helps them gain sympathy for the medium.

"It's an exciting endeavor! They really enjoy it and so do I," said Barrus, energetically in summing his reaction to the class.

It is a requirement for cinematography majors but is open to all other students. It has grown from a class of ten to over sixty students in the past few years, he said.

Poe book gets highest price

NEW YORK (AP) — The finest known copy of Edgar Allan Poe's first poem sold for $123,000 Wednesday, the highest price ever paid for a single American literary work.

A copy of the poem, "Tamerlane," sold for 15 cents in Boston back in 1868 and brought $15,500 at a New York auction in 1945.

The book auctioned off Wednesday was bought by John Fleming, a New York dealer, acting for the Joseph and Helen Regenstein Foundation, which will present it to the Joseph Regenstein Library at the University of Chicago.

This leaves just one copy in private hands. Another record sale at the Parke Bernet gallery was the first, 1851 London edition of Herman Melville's "Moby Dick" — when the book was still called "The Whale."

New York dealer Justin C. Schiller paid $17,000 for it. Publication costs of "Tamerlane" in 1827 left young Poe so broke he joined the U.S. Army to escape his creditors.

The distinguished bibliophile Michael Papantonio said this week that "it is the finest copy of the most renowned rarity in the entire field of American literature."

The book was put up for auction after its most recent owner, William E. Stockhausen, was killed in a traffic crash.

Stockhausen, a 62-year-old attorney and publisher, had lived in Dorset, Vt.

Librarians, literary types and, inevitably, speculators, flocked to New York for the two-day sale of 508 items.

Only seven nondamaged copies of "Tamerlane" are known to exist and all are in libraries except for two—the one up for auction and one owned by H. Bradley Martin, a book collector and friend and neighbor of Stockhausen in Dorset.

Although "Tamerlane" was published in 1827, when Poe was 18, it wasn't sold until 1868.

Poe explained the delay by saying only that the poem, which was about the king who led a Mongol horde through central Asia, "was suppressed" through circumstances of a private nature. "A bit of detective work determined that printer Calvin F.S. Thomas had not been paid."

BYU's coronation set, Utah may play jester

Betham (41) shown in action against Utah last year, is leading the WAC in punt returns and leading the Cougars in pass receptions with 36 catches for 529 yards and six touchdowns.

By RALPH C. AMOTT
Universe Sports Writer

Seeking their second WAC title in the school's history, BYU will face rival Utah Saturday at Provo beginning at 1:30 p.m. A win over Utah will not only secure a WAC title for the Cougars but send them to the fourth annual Fiesta Bowl which will pit the WAC winner against Oklahoma State the afternoon of Dec. 28 at Tempe, Ariz.

BYU, sporting a 5-0-1 record in WAC competition is an undisputed favorite in the match with Utah whose WAC record stands at 1-4. Utah has played the spoiler in the past, however, and comes to this annual BYU series with a 38-7-4 win advantage.

Chances are slim, however, that they can compete effectively with a BYU team riding its longest string of league wins since the 1937-38 seasons. Quarterback Gary Shiede should surpass the five "season" records he set last year at BYU when he passed for 2,350 yards and 22 touchdowns. He has already surpassed the WAC record of 347 completions, a career mark formerly held by ASU's Danny White. Shiede did it in one season less than White.

"Their strong point is their speed in running backs and wide receivers," said Coach LaVell Edwards about Utah. "I think they have a pretty good pass defense also, but I don't think they have seen a passing attack that is as versatile as ours."

"Although we haven't rushed for many yards," said Edwards, "we have been successful at keeping the other team off balance. I'm sure Utah will be up to the game, but we'll be up too. We're not going to let down."

Edwards reported that all the players who had suffered some injuries in last week's romp over New Mexico will be ready to play Saturday. Paul Linford had sustained a probable cracked rib in the New Mexico game.

Aside from a Texas-El Paso upset of Arizona State, the Cougars have made their own way to the top of the WAC standings, thanks to Shiede's arm and an outstanding rushing defense.

A total of 11 seniors will be playing their final game at home Saturday. They are all starters; five on offense and six on defense. The seniors are Gary Shiede, Tim Mahoney, John Betham, Sam LoBue, Tom Toolson, Paul Linford, Wayne Baker, Keith Rivera, Larry Carr, Mike Russell and Doug Adams.

The Utes enter this week's competition in the wake of a 34-0 loss in Logan last week to the Utah State Aggies.

"BYU presents many of the same problems defensively that Utah State did for us last week," said Utah Coach Tom Lovat. "The Aggies are very tough against the inside run, and last week they forced us to pass 43 times. We'll go with Jim Miller, our best passer, against the Y and if we can't establish the ground attack then we'll just have to try the pass extensively again."

Lovat, in his first year as head coach at Utah recalled, "I think it was Wyoming's Fritz Shurmur who said before the season that the difference in the WAC this year could be the great talents of Shiede and it's worked out just that way."

The Utes are riding on the hope that they can do to the Y just what they received last year in Provo. The Utes went into this same game last year with a 7-3 overall record and an outside chance at the WAC title with a win over Arizona State and a 4-1 league mark. BYU was out of the figuring for league honors with a 3-6 overall record and 1-4 standing in the WAC but crushed Ute hopes in a 46-22 romp in a heavy snowstorm. As Coach Edwards said, "I'm sure they haven't forgotten it."

When asked about the turnaround in BYU's success after losing the first three games, Edwards explained, "Our first three losses resulted partly from us trying to rollout more with our passing attack. We gave up on that idea and went back to the straight drop-back passes, and also the kids never gave up on themselves."

Shiede, the nation's No. 1 passer, with a 61 per cent completion rating can be expected to pass to a variety of receivers as usual. Prime receivers have been John Betham (36 receptions for 529 yards and six touchdowns) and Jeff Blanc (30 receptions for 409 yards).

Air Force boasts top grid kicker

NEW YORK (AP)—Air Force scores its points in batches of three, thanks to junior linebacker Dave Lawson.

Lawson has kicked 19 field goals in 10 games this season, smashing the old mark of 18 field goals set in 1969 by Wyoming's Bob Jacobs and tied last year by Stanford's Rod Garcia, who kicked 18 in 11 games, according to National Collegiate Sports Services figures released Wednesday.

Lawson surpassed the old record with three field goals against Arizona, but the Wildcats scored a touchdown in the final seconds to win 27-24. The Air Force has lost by one point to Army and Colorado, by two points to Brigham Young and by four points to Wyoming and Oregon.

Lawson's field goal sank Navy 19-16.

Y hosts coed spikers in WAC tournament

The eight best women's collegiate volleyball teams in the intermountain region will meet at BYU today and Saturday for the IAIW (WAC) Regional Volleyball Tournament.

The first round matches will be played at 9 and 10:30 a.m., the second round matches at 1:30 and 3 p.m. with the third round going at 6:30 and 8 p.m. All matches will be played on the 144 RB floor and the main court in 146 RB. The semi-finals will begin at 9 a.m. on Saturday with the finals at 2:30 p.m. on the 146 RB main court.

BYU enjoys the number one seeding in the tournament by virtue of their excellent 11-1 league record. Following in a close second are three teams who tied for second with 10-2 league play records. On the basis of the number of points scored against them, the University of Northern Colorado won the second seed followed by Arizona State University and the University of Arizona in fourth position. The lower half of the bracket was filled by Utah State University, the University of New Mexico, Idaho State University and Fort Lewis College.

A see-saw battle of wins and losses during league play would indicate that the championship is up-for-grabs to any of the top four teams. The University of Arizona handed BYU its single loss, but then was defeated by Arizona State and the University of Northern Colorado. The University of Northern Colorado also beat ASU, the defending region champion, and then fell to both Utah teams in the last two league matches.

BYU was defeated by the University of Arizona after soundly beating their rival Arizona State University and the powerful University of Northern Colorado team. Although Utah State University handed the University of Northern Colorado their first league play loss, their 7-5 league record is not very impressive. The battle seems to be among the top four teams.

The Cougars are the favorite team going into the tournament, but Coach Elaine Michaelis is making no predictions. "Our teams can win if they play their game," she commented, Karen Curtis, who was sidelined by her physician during the last two matches, has been given the OK to play and should see a lot of championship action. Ace spiker, Kelley Jones and captain-play maker, Malia Ane have both recovered from their ankle injuries and will be ready for action this weekend. With the entire team healthy the Cougars should be the strongest contenders.

OPINION—COMMENT

Brigham Young University

Grade credibility

"It's the worst I've seen in my 23 years of coaching." (Joe Paterno, Penn State) "It's not the kids, it's the system." (Digger Phelps, Notre Dame) "It's getting vicious again... The competition reminds me of the old slave market, talking about 'things' instead of 'people.' Budgets are reaching the point of win or else." (Rev. Ed Visscher, Long Island Lutheran High School) "It wasn't worth it, the winning, the losing and everything else." (Bob Cousy, "Mr. Basketball," Boston Celtics) "When you compete with the Joneses you'd better have a program like the Joneses." (Wade Walker, U of Oklahoma)

—the sounds of crisis: crisis in the drama of competition, of winning and losing, of glory and defeat, as Howard Kossell would put it; or as the New York Times did put it, the "Big Business of Sports Recruiting: A Crisis in the Sports" (Sunday, March 10, 1974)

These are sounds familiar to anyone attuned to the realities of athletic competition, or presidential politics, or—we can now add—academics and grading. Ethically-sensitive men like Bob Cousy are increasingly getting out of athletics, and 11th-hour converts like John Dean are quitting presidential politics. What will happen to sensitive educators and students is anyone's guess.

The inflation of grades raises some very serious questions for all of us—questions at least as serious as those raised by intercollegiate sports recruiting practices or presidential electioneering practices. If Time magazine's report, "Too Many A's," (Nov. 11, 1974) is correct, grade distributions at some of the major universities are just about as credible as President Nixon's professions that he knew nothing of the coverup, but that it was all John Dean's doing. Comments from students and educators quoted in the report are instructive. "I've worked hard to get good grades here (Stanford), and I thought they would help when I was ready for grad school. Now I find out everybody has good grades." (Patricia Fels, senior) According to the Stanford student paper, the grade point average is 3.5+. "At Yale, 42 percent of all undergraduate spring-term grades were A's." According to Eva Barlagh, dean of Yale's Morse College, "It's ridiculous, they get a B and they bawl. It takes a man or woman of real integrity to give a B." (Apparently integrity has also inflated by one grade point! What ever happened to the statistically-solid, honest, average C?)

"Some instructors are overly aware of the faculty evaluations their students will write at the end of the course. In effect, they are bribing students with good grades to get good grades themselves." (That's probably what happened to the average C; but do we need Time magazine to tell us this?) Where is the professor willing to risk receiving low Spiritually Inspiring ratings (Item 7, Sec. III, Survey of Students) by awarding a C grade for a solid, honest, average performance, when he knows that students conditioned by inflated grades must assume that the teacher awarding that grade is somehow dishonest or holds a personal grudge against him?

In view of (a) the definitions of grades in the faculty handbook and (b) the pressure from students to award higher grades, the outraged students who find out "everybody has good grades," (c) the potential "pay off" in student evaluations for awarding higher grades, and (c) William Keogh's (Asst. Dean of Stanford's Law School) remark that "Everyone coming in with a 4.0 makes it hard to evaluate the grades" in view of the pressures created by this system of contradictions, who is the teacher of integrity: one who goes along with inflated grading practices, or one who attempts to restore the credibility of a C grade by holding the line? In the long run, who serves himself and his students best? If we cannot find answers for ourselves, perhaps we can see wisdom in the advice of the teachers who observed that a single teacher acting alone will never restore respectability to grades. Everyone will have to be committed and resolve to act in concert, quickly—perhaps next semester? Are there enough Bob Cousys or John Deans still left around to try?

—Haimson M. Davis

Rockefeller stuff

The pitchers of ice water had been filled to the brim, and the accompanying glasses were neatly aligned. The TV cameras stood ready for action and the Senate Rules Committee Chairman cleared his throat one last time.

Then Nelson Rockefeller walked into the committee room and the people of the country received a touch of something we need very badly right now—class.

In the vernacular of the day, Rockefeller has all his stuff together. He exudes confidence. We need a lot of that right now.

The former Governor of New York came before the committee as one accused of the transgression of generosity. He answered all questions about his gifts with politeness, grace and wit. When given the opportunity to answer an occasional question of substance, Rockefeller demonstrated a depth of understanding and a grasp of the issues befitting one who has spent a lifetime exposed to those who think great thoughts and dream big dreams.

He was an eagle among sparrows. Senator Byrd's pecks never phased Rockefeller. They seemed insignificant. For how can you fault a man who gave generously to his friends because he cared about them and sincerely wanted to help? The gifts of money, stock, and loans were tokens of friendship, albeit they totaled hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Of a truth, F. Scott Fitzgerald was right when he said: "The rich are different from us." To which Hemingway replied: "Yes, they have money."

This fact makes it difficult for us who take out our own garbage to understand the casualness with which Rockefeller gave so much to so many. Yet, it appears abundantly evident that he acted in good faith. He did not seek to bribe or buy favors. Still, he's said that as Vice President, he would cease to contribute to his friends' well-being lest his intentions be further misunderstood and misinterpreted. This is probably a good idea since common folk cannot always comprehend the ways of a man who is obviously a classic example of the natural aristocracy.

In the meantime, let's hope that Rockefeller will not be disqualified because of his gifts. After all, Americans have always given lip service to that laudable principle which holds that it's better to give than to receive.

Letters to the Editor

Bicycle

Editor: Once again the sting of bicycle mismanagement has stained my impression of their use and this time prompted a letter to the editor.

As I recently descended the ramp to lower campus there was at my side a massive accident between one BYU coed and a grand prix 10-speed bicycle driver. To say the least, it was a disaster in the collision involved a bicycle and pedestrian, body and fender would have been seen in the hundreds of dollars.

Just as an empty road late at night doesn't justify excessive speed in a car, neither does a scarcely traveled foot and bike path in the late afternoon justify plenty of ticket forms in the hands of a bicycle cop. It is not when hitting something through negligence by its operator is any reason to supervise their use on the ramps and from campus. As is the case with many motor vehicle operators, many of the campus bicycle users are getting away with more than they should be.

to the 'Star Spangled Banner' in the rain. He cynically points out that Americans, especially here at BYU, demand a display of visible (i.e. elaborate) behavior in the areas of patriotism, morality, and spirituality. There is nothing elaborate about standing in the rain listening to a bunch of familiarly arranged musical notes.

If, however, one has a sense of respect for what those notes represent, can a display of respect for that feeling be so wrong? Those who choose not to visibly pay respect to the history, freedoms, and sacrifice represented by the national anthem and the national standard (flag) are not to be condemned, as this is one of the rights this nation protects.

Mr. Barbosa, you are under no obligation, legal or moral, to stand in the rain merely to display something which you may not feel. Mr. Jeffers, if you see someone "infected" with the patriotic spirit, please do move on. In this country we don't force anyone to be thankful for those who stood or laid in rain or snow for longer than the few minutes that our national anthem lasts, sweating or freezing—and dying—so that you are free to criticize those who may choose to be thankful.

Seating

Editor: I believe people should be rewarded according to their individual efforts, or in other words, the early bird should get the worm. Usually this is the rule with our devotional and fireside; how early you come and how long you are willing to wait determines what quality seat you'll get. However at our last fireside this wasn't the case.

About forty-five minutes before seven o'clock the people in the first fifteen center rows, many of whom had been there an hour or more, were asked to move as their seats had supposedly been reserved for Branch Presidents and their families. Amid groans of disbelief the seats were submissively evacuated and these people had to settle for ones much farther away. For the next half-hour the center rows remained empty until they were reopened just before the meeting commenced and quickly filled by grateful late-comers.

It seems fair that if seats are to be reserved they should be marked or roped off before people start arriving. Also, wonder if it is fair that Branch Presidents are allowed top priority seats (even if they arrive just on time) over students who have waited up to two hours. I don't think their job should necessarily include this privilege.

I hope our next fireside will be more organized and not another game of musical chairs.

Consumers

Editor: In your article "Ads Like Fertility Rites," appears the following statement: "Industrial cultures are not worried about production but they are concerned about consumption... they must consume enough to keep the wheels of industry turning." Does this mean that the consumer, not the producer, is the motor of an economy? If so, I challenge the view.

Consumers per se have no purchasing power; they are not part of anyone's market. Only producers have earned the right to consume. People who consume, but do not produce, cannot turn the wheels of industry—they are candidates for charity.

A market consists of the trading of goods and services. The people who make things are the same people who buy them. Producers represent a "market supply," and in the role of consumers they represent a "market demand." They provide their own payroll by spending their earnings. Production is a prerequisite to consumption.

Some people's idea of a trade is: "You produce it; I consume it." But this is not the way it works. Need does not draw the flow of goods. There has to be an electrical connection between two producers that generate the flow of production. This is a natural law and all the legislation in the world cannot change it. Production precedes purchasing power.

But, production is not a perpetual motion machine. Formerly Great Britain has shown us what happens when producers are taken for granted, when incentive is expropriated, when business is nationalized, when it can be stagnant. DECONTROL. CLOYD BIRD

Learning

Editor: After reading Brother Lee Burnham's article on competition, I was really impressed. To what end is all this anyway? Are we here to get a degree, a 4.0 GPA or are we here to learn something? In our "pursuit of happiness" shouldn't we concentrate on achieving some new knowledge or insight of life we never knew existed before?

My wife often complains to me that she beats her brains out ending up with low grades because other fellow students took the class knowing it would be easy.

I wonder what the professor expects of me in my class when I'm handed a test that answers my questions all too late! But wait... "This can't be this test explains everything. I'm actually learning and

Winning team tradition

In the past three months we have seen the members of BYU's football team described as undisciplined egotistical ruffians who have been psychoanalyzed and found to possess undesirable characteristics that are not indicative of good Mormon character.

Ever since the donnybrook that erupted at the end of the Utah State game, the players have been indicted and excused in the eyes of everyone from the faculty to the neighborhood newsboy.

There is no excuse for what happened at the Utah State game; however, it is interesting how everyone is ready to throw rocks when the team is losing and something is wrong. It's sad to note how little recognition is given when team members act with propriety.

It is time publicly to congratulate the team as a whole and Stan Varner and Gary Shaw in particular for their deportment and the way they have represented BYU and the church on the field. Gary and Stan were both hit during the Wyoming and UTEP games in a manner which would have caused most people to retaliate. Both retained their composure and continued on to some very solid victories.

This year's football squad is a TEAM!! A unit which will reach down inside and come up with what needs to be for victory—not just victory but striving for excellence.

BYU fans often wonder why BYU is not rated higher, especially in light of our continuing victories, and why do teams like Arizona State and Ohio State lose games and still maintain their national rankings. As Teyva of "Fiddler on the Roof" said, "Tradition, Ohio State, Arizona State, Michigan and others are traditional winners. Even though the last two winning seasons have found BYU at the top of the WAC, nationally we are still considered traditional losers.

Why? What Makes a traditional win? Success begets success. A winning tradition is composed of several factors: a serious winning seasons, a young aggressive team, effective recruiting program, an energetic community and campus support.

When we speak of community and campus support, we're not talking about the cheerleaders and downtown crowd. We're talking about mass spontaneous sincere support from every student. This is what happens at Utah State, Ohio State, Michigan, and the traditionally winning schools.

One would be surprised at the effect the member of a simple, "Good luck 'Bear Utah.' This sincerity from someone he does not even know can motivate individual to great heights. It should be said just to the starting players but to the member of the team. For a variety unit better than his scout team makes it.

Even in the middle of the exciting Arizona State game, the traditional apathy sloughed through. The seats north of the card section resembled the typical "dying" morgue. As usual, people were concerned with what they were doing or who they were with when supporting the team. For a variety unit better than his scout team makes it.

Coach Edwards, his staff, and the team have provided the basis for a winning tradition. Just how much of a tradition is determined by the student body. The decision is up to you. Beat Utah and the Fiesta Bowl!

Rockefeller begs in apology to mom

Resembling a disheveled child apologizing to a missing brother, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller told a Senate committee that if confirmed as Vice President he would reduce his private giving to friends.

Rockefeller's words were, "You've made me see how of my acts which were undertaken out of generosity come to appear to the public to be something they were not. I wonder... could I start something new... a school of learning? 'A STYLE OF OUR OWN'."

Pickles

Editor: "Often it seems that the 'Letters to the Editor' smacks of 'pickle-sucking' (and trivial pickles at that). We would hope that future letters would be more meaningful and constructive."

We would like to suggest a mission statement for all that is both meaningful and constructive. Why not write a letter to your hometown newspaper, noting the life at BYU is unique, and therefore it is newsworthy. This is especially true at this time due to the national recognition of quarterback Gary Shieder.

"I should never get an article published," you feel? My mother, while serving as a missionary in Argentina, sent a feature article on life in that country to our hometown newspaper. It was published in the Sunday edition, which has a circulation of over 100,000.

Some feature articles on BYU would be missionary tools. Of course, they would have to be interesting, well-written and tactful. But these criteria should not be too hard to meet. For example, a national magazine recently noted that colleges across the nation are experiencing increased enrollment in social dance classes, and that the king of the dancing world, Let's our hometown paper know about the church that views dancing not as a sin, but as a sport which is at once an uplift and a ball.

We deeply hope that someone will successfully follow through on this idea. We look forward to seeing other student suggestions in "Letters to the Editor" which will help to uplift as citizens, students and saints.

Y's & Wherefore

By ROGER HOSKINS

I can't even remember the first time (or last for matter) that I kissed a girl. Somewhere in the abyss of those memories have faded into willowy wisps and shadows.

Some of those shadows were jarred into focus the night when one of my roommates came in carrying sack ice cream. He had just had the baptism of fire—his first Ever.

I suspected that he wouldn't last long with lips untested and untainted because it is a rare returned missionary's lips are untested for long. This I have on good authority from the horse's mouth so to speak.

Paul warmed my heart right up as he described his pucker.

It wasn't easy at first but my newspaperman's blood smelt an arousing story and the difficult I managed to drag the gory details out of him. The nan this piece have been changed in order to protect the and my nose from left hooks.

"What was it like?" I asked beginning the interrogation. "Well," replied Paul, "I think it was all right—for open." "Did she have to make the first move?"

"No," replied Paul hastily, "I made the first move."

"Just exactly how did you go about it—w premeditated or a sneak attack?"

"It was her birthday and I gave her a choice of either or a spanking."

"She took the smooch, eh?"

"Not immediately," admitted Paul, "It took her twenty minutes to make up her mind."

"Why so long?" I asked.

Paul blushed and said, "I'm really not sure. I think she was afraid of being disappointed."

"So," I said, trying to get to the bottom of the thing, "it was a ceremonial kiss and not born of the heart?"

"The first one was."

"There were more than one," I asked unbelieving and grudging admiration.

"Yes."

"How many more?" I asked, knowing a good reporter always get the right score.

Paul turned red and refused to answer the inquiry. I clear Paul was not one to kiss and tell... how many.

I tried a new angle to overcome Paul's coverup. "Is any symbolic significance in the 17 ice cream carton brought home?"

"No!" shouted Paul with a little too much emphasis.

"Let's get back to the technique—how did she feel it? Was she closed-mouth about it or open to suggest it?"

"I better be going to bed."

"Wait a minute! Do you think it was worth the cream?"

"No doubt about it."

"Would you like to do it again?"

"I suppose," said Paul tongue in cheek, "It was better kissing my mom or sister."

Football standard

Are BYU football players more sacred than the dress code upheld by other BYU students? Looking at our illustrious hero's pictures in the ELWC last week, is it no wonder that people question BYU on their supposed standards?

"Hair must be styled so that it does not cover the ears and must be above the collar in the back," states The First Presidency in a pamphlet "A Style of Our Own," published in 1973.

The football coaching staff follows the BYU dress and hair standards, and reminds the players periodically about them according to Richard Felt, defense backfield coach.

"Because we are a team representing the university, we stress the dress and hair standards," he said.

If the football players have the opportunity to represent the school, shouldn't they be self motivated to keep their hair cut? Shouldn't all BYU students be self motivated to adhere to the dress and grooming standards?

Do we have to be commanded as were the children of Israel under the Law of Moses?
